Hines Boy Writes Back to Prove That He Has Not Been Murdered.

STORY DUE TO NEGRO'S FEAR

Horse Thief Was Nearly Lynched for Crime He Had Not Committed.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
LYNCHBURG, VA., May 31.—Robert Moore, the negro brought here ten days ago to prevent mob violence in Abington, for the supposed murder of James Hines, the sixteen-year-old nephew of Mayor J. A. Hines, of that place, will not have to stand trial for this offense, despite the fact that he confessed in the jail at Abington that he had robbed and killed the boy. Young Hines has just informed his uncle that he is alive and well, and that no harm has come to him. He was just leaving Athens, Ohio, he said, when he learned through the newspapers that he had been murdered by Moore, and he wrote briefly to assure his family that he was well, promising to write again in a day or two.

Foreed to Confess, He Says.
The negro was brought to Lynchburg from the Washington county jail, this step being deemed necessary, it was stated at the time, to prevent a lynching. When seen in jail here the negro admitted that he had been with the boy, but claimed he had not killed him. He asserted that he had been forced to declare that he had killed Hines, fearing that a mob would be turned into the jail on him if he did not make the confession desired of him.

Following the confession a party of friends and relatives of the young man rode over the mountains, a distance of sixty miles, into Dickinson county, for the purpose of identifying the remains. This trip resulted in the discovery that the carcass was that of a dog. The party was headed by E. E. Seay, a son of W. M. Seay, of this city, whose wife is a sister of Hines.

On Sunday morning Mr. Seay received a letter from his son, in which he asked that the local papers be asked to aid in an effort to locate the boy or to ascertain something about him, in order to satisfy his family. This morning, however, the second letter came, advising Mr. Seay of the letter from Ohio.

The negro who had such a close call from mob violence will have to go back to Washington county, serving the charge of horse stealing, for which he was under arrest when he was forced to admit that he had committed a murder.

PENSION ROLLS.
More Than Three Billion Dollars Paid
It will be seen that Congress has grown more liberal with the succeeding years, and it is quite within the power of the present Congress to come still further increases in the amount of pensions allowed will be made. The result of the enactment of the act of 1907, which provided for "executive order" has been the greater simplification of the work of the Pension Bureau, which has been a steady increase since 1899, when the expense incurred was $4,175,157. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, the cost of maintenance was only $2,800,953.

The pension roll on the national pocketbook will continue to be a heavy drain on the treasury, but regardless of the "dwindling ranks" of the survivors of the war, the total amount paid out last year by the United States government is as follows:

War of the Revolution	70,000,000 00
War of 1812 (service pension)	45,634,465 24
Indian wars (service pension)	2,355,711 02
War with Mexico (service pension)	40,376,379 10
Civil War (service pension)	3,553,593,025 95
War with Spain and Insurrection in the Philippine Islands	22,553,435 41
Reconstruction	16,393,945 35
Unclassified	16,393,945 35
Total	$2,751,108,599 96

Spotylvania Wedding.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., May 31.—Mrs. Jacob Swain, wife of one of Forsyth's leading farmers, died suddenly of a heart attack while she and her husband were in the car on their way to the home of a neighbor. She was fifty-one years of age.

THE NEGRO'S RIGHT TO WORK.
Of Immediate Concern to the South, the strike on the Georgia Railroad has been settled by an agreement which may be described as a compromise, though largely in the interests of the white farmer.

Far more important in its final effect than the declaration of independence of a few negroes as freemen is the admirable spirit in which the press of the South has met the issue. In every Southern State newspapers of influence and large circulation have courageously insisted upon the negro's right to work. Thus the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The South . . . has always declared that it gave the negro a square deal and an even chance industrially. It has declared that it has been a truth. To oust negroes from positions which they are filling efficiently and without personal friction is to repudiate the logical result of which is the continuing multiplication of the idle negro, the most dangerous element in the body of the South.

This position has been emphasized again and again. The idle negro is likely to be the criminal negro. The working negro is likely to be the personal responsibility, of self-respect and of self-improvement. It was in his behalf and in behalf of the peace and order of the South that the New Orleans Times-Democrat scored Governor Smith for his failure to enforce order and spur the idea that the issue was "racial."

It is not. The white workman of the South is as much concerned in the right of the negro to work as himself. Under slavery, when 8,000 great slaveholding families practically ruled the whole South, the "poor white" was the enemy of the negro. The system. He worked in exact, whether for wages or on his own account, in competition with slaves, if the purpose of the Georgia strike could be carried out in all trades, it would negro idleness and crime increase, but there would soon be a great mass of penniless labor ready to compete with white workmen for any work that offered.

The negro is in the South to stay. The future of the region, and of every white man in it, is inextricably bound up with the negro's education, his industrial opportunity and his increasing prosperity.—New York World.

BROWN SHOULD WIN.
Why Bedford County Man Should Be Made Commissioner of Agriculture.
A race between Mr. J. Thompson Brown, of Bedford county, and Mr. George W. Kolner, for Commissioner of Agriculture, is fast developing into the most interesting contest of the campaign. During his administration Mr. Kolner has been known throughout the State and has made a number of friends, all of whom are supporting him with more or less ardor in his canvass.

Mr. Brown, on the other hand, has developed great strength, and his supporters are throughout the State. Mr. Brown's great success thus far in his campaign is ascribed by one of his supporters in this city to his strong personality, his uniform success in a number of enterprises he has undertaken, his loyalty to the party, his success as a practical farmer, and his familiarity with the most improved methods of farming.

Thompson Brown, a real gentleman, in speaking of the matter last night, "has everything in his favor. All who know him realize that he never undertakes anything without carrying it through, and they believe that with him at the head of the Agricultural Department he will realize for Virginia farmers the greatest possibilities for improved agriculture."

Mr. Brown's record as a practical farmer, as an advocate of improved farming, and as a man of high character, are being cited as among the best proofs of his qualifications for office. Born forty-eight years ago in Bedford county, Mr. Brown has been a farmer all his life, and has been closely identified with the farmers' organizations of the State. He belonged to the executive committee of the old Farmers' Assembly and of the State Agricultural Society, and was the representative of the Farmers' National Congress. In all of these bodies he showed invaluable judgment and close acquaintance with actual farming conditions.

Mr. Brown's record as a member of the board of visitors of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and as rector of the board, are well known throughout the State. He became a member of the board of visitors at a time when V. P. I. had not begun its most successful career, and he remained at the head of the board until he saw a farming school established and the institute on its way to complete success.

Mr. Brown's record as a member of V. P. I. was forced to be absent for his health during the session of 1905-'06. Mr. Brown was chosen by the board as acting president, but he refused to hold the office with salary, claiming that as a member of the board of visitors he had no right to accept a place on the staff of the institute. At the urgent request of the board, however, he consented to supervise affairs at the institute without pay, and was eminent successful during the years of his work.

It was while a member of the board of the institute that Mr. Brown did perhaps his most important service to the farmers of the State in securing from the Legislature the passage of a bill appointing a State Board of Crop Pest Commissioners. This board has been instrumental in eradicating San Jose scale and other injurious insects from the State. Mr. Brown also was prominent in securing the appointment of the Board of Cattle Quarantine Commissioners, and his efforts, with those of Mr. John Goody, of Bedford county, were successful in securing the State supply of cattle from being quarantined because of the Texas fever tick. Had quarantine been declared, it would have resulted in great loss to the State, and particularly to certain sections of the cattle-raising district. During the last few years the quarantine line has been gradually forced towards the southern boundary of the State, and now there are very few counties which have not clear bills of health.

While these services to the agriculture of the State are being cited by Mr. Brown's adherents as ample warrant for his election, it is generally conceded that his most important services have been in connection with the work of the late Constitutional Convention. With the president of the convention, Mr. John Goody, Mr. Brown was elected by the people of Bedford to represent them, and his work in that body was especially valuable. Mr. Brown devoted himself chiefly to the questions of education, agriculture and good roads while at the convention, and was the author of some of the most important measures adopted by the convention on these subjects.

In connection with education, Mr. Brown advocated the entire removal of the State's educational work from politics. In one of the most impressive speeches delivered before the convention, he declared that "the whole education of the State should be removed from its being removed from political influences." With this end in view, he sought to have the State Board of Education, composed of trained educators, entirely removed from politics, and empowered to choose the Commissioner of Education.

Somewhat the same general attitude was shown by Mr. Brown in connection with the subject of agriculture. He declared repeatedly before the convention that the only successful way to advance the Department of Agriculture was to place it in the hands of a Board of Agriculture, composed of men who were practical farmers, who would co-operate with existing bodies for the advancement of the farming industry, and would not intermeddle with politics.

Mr. Brown was the author of that provision in the Constitution of the State which permitted the State to engage in the building of public roads, while denying to the General Assembly the right to engage in any other works of internal improvements. The convention was not willing, at first, to take up this proposition, and a majority believed that the entire question should be left to the county supervisors. Mr. Brown, however, insisted that the question should be completely in the hands of the Assembly in cases where the county supervisors would not take up the work of road building, and accordingly he urged, with great zeal, the adoption of his plan.

His plan was adopted, and the Assembly was authorized to undertake the building of highways. But for Mr. Brown's determined fight on this subject, the present Highway Commission would not have been appointed, and the State would have been deprived of one of its most useful fields of activity.

Mr. Brown's entire record is cited by his adherents as above, and it is as a marked instance of what can be accomplished by a practical man, successful in his own farming, and familiar with the most improved policies of co-operation.

Mr. Brown was elected to the office of the State "Will he? You may be sure that when the primary comes around the farmers of the State and the business men who believe in the true advancement of the State's agriculture will see him where he can do the most service to the State. That point is sure."
